Appliance Energy Efficiency Changes

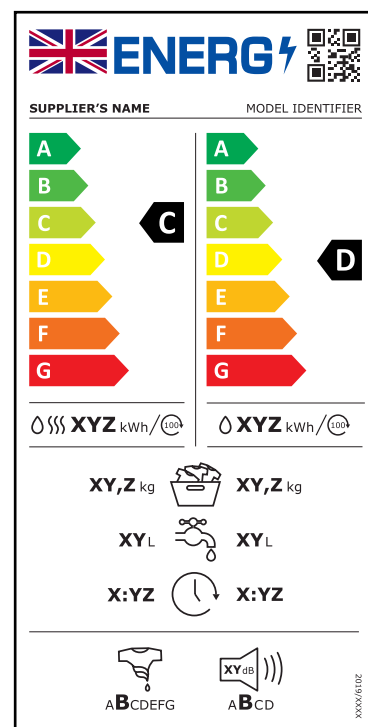

Major improvements in energy saving technology have raised large household appliances to the top of the rating scale, where they are clustered from A to A+++. To create space for further advances, from 1st March 2021 the energy ratings have been revised. Using new measurement criteria, current models will be rated simply from A to G, making it easier to compare products and allowing the industry space to develop eco-performance.

What is affected?

- Dishwashers
- Fridges and freezers
- Washing machines
- Wine storage
- Washer dryers

Tumble dryers, cookers and hoods are currently unaffected by these changes.

From 1st March 2021 new labels like the one shown here will replace the old labels on all displays. These new labels are already being supplied in product boxes since 1st November 2020. From 1st December 2021, products originally placed on the market before 1st November 2020 will be discontinued. All currently affected products have been updated within the Appliance Guide and on our Portal.

Please note that all prices are correct at the time of publishing but are subject to change.
